Not illustrated. 1878 Excerpt: .rendered the change necessary, we nevertheless cannot but regret the circumstances. We endorsed, unequivocally from the first, the original plan, and although it met with much opposition and in some quarters was made the excuse for a malevolent warfare on on the Medical Department of the University, the sober second thought had commenced to assume the ascendancy, and the wisdom of the arrangement would ere long have been conceded. This homoeopathic question is one which will continue to force itself in one or other of its protean forms upon the profession of this country, and it will some time have to be dealt with. We regret further in this connection the recent action of the Regents in that it has, to a certain extent, forestalled the action of the American Medical Association. J. J. M. The names of those who have remitted since our last, will appear in our next issue. ORIGINAL ARTICLES. EPIDEBMIO MEDICATION AND ALIMENTATION. By DEWITT C. WADE, M. D. Under favorable circumstances, the skin is capable of conveying fluids from its surface into the circulation. This is not new, yet advantage is not frequently taken of this function of tegumentary tissue. I propose to discuss the circumstances that favor ttbsorption by the skin, and to call attention to the desirability of sometimes employing this method--of medication and alimentation. The formulas to be given for this purpose are probably new. I believe that the first element of absorption is solution, and this obtains...
