Excerpt: .above, show his close conformity to the teachings of John.10. 215. Behind Justin Martyr stands Papias, bishop of Hierapolis, in Asia Minor, whose testimony links us with apostolic men and women. Papias was born about 65 A. D. He published an Exposition of the Oracles of Our Lord about 135 A. D. Papias was acquainted with companions and friends of seven apostles and two disciples of the Lord. He says he learned that Mark's Gospel was the report of Peter, and that Matthew wrote in Hebrew. Aristion and the Presbyter John were the surviving disciples of the Lord whom Papias knew. The elder informed him about Mark's Gospel. There is no mention of Luke and John in the fragments of the writings of Papias which have been preserved. These fragments we have preserved in the Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius, who wrote about 300 A. D. Papias may have referred to Luke and John in the original work. It was not required by the aim and plan of Eusebius to tell all he found in Papias, or other sources from which he drew. Eusebius explains that he meant to narrate not all but only the most interesting and significant facts regarding the Gospels.¹¹ Eusebius himself accepted all four of the Gospels. Indirectly then his neglect to mention Luke and John in connection with Papias implies that Papias does mention these Gospels. For had he been silent about them this would have been an...
