Bharatiya Kala Prakashan, New Delhi, 2013. Soft cover. Book Condition: New. 363pp. Volume three is broadly the history of modern India which is usually considered to begin with the emergence of European powers and the European influence in everything, culture, lifestyle, education-system, art, architecture ? and is hence more a subject-related concept, not so much the time-defined. More than the dates the volume is concerned about the spirit of an event. Least framed into periodicity it intrudes into the medieval era by centuries beginning with European navigators, such as Vasco de Gama, landing at Calicut in 1498 AD. By 1500 or 1510 AD, the Europeans had begun settling on Indian subcontinent. The volume links the beginning of modern India with the event of the influx of these early Christian settlers on Indian soil and concludes it in India's attainment of freedom, establishment of democratic rule and installation of a people's Law, The Constitution of India. The six systems of Indian philosophy Vedanta or Uttarmimamsa, Purvamimamsa, Samkhya, Yoga, Nyaya and Vaisheshika-occupy an important place in India's thinking principle. Though they differ from each other and criticize each other, they share nevertheless so many things in common and we can understand them as products of one and the same soil though cultivated by different Acharyas. All the six systems of thought promise to teach the nature of soul, and its relation to Supreme being. They all undertake to supply the means of knowing the nature of that Supreme Being, and through that knowledge to pave the way to liberation and Supreme happiness. They all share the conviction that there is suffering in the world and that has to be removed. The six systems of Indian philosophy Vedanta or Uttarmimamsa, Purvamimamsa, Samkhya, Yoga, Nyaya and Vaisheshika-occupy an important place in India's thinking principle. Though...
